

AKTAVITE CAMPFIRES AGAINST CANCER - THE LEGACY CONTINUES...

AktaVite is pleased to announce the arrival of “Junior”

The AktaVite Campfires Against Cancer team has a new member. Junior (pictured above with his mum) is the second born of AktaVite who was the team mascot for the historic Campfires Against Cancer journey led by Danny Phegan.

AktaVite Campfires Against Cancer saw Danny, AktaVite and the team travel 4,600km from Darwin to Corryong during one of Australia’s worst droughts, raising $534,000 along the way for cancer research.

Funds raised now support the AktaVite Campfires Against Cancer Fellow, Pierre Dilda. Mr Dilda works at the Cancer Council of New South Wales alongside Prof. Philip Hogg who has recently developed a new cancer management drug that will allow doctors to quickly assess the effectiveness of cancer treatment in patients.

The latest addition is welcomed by the extended AktaVite Campfires Against Cancer clan and reminds us all of the importance of a “team effort” in fighting against cancer.
